

Letter from Alexander Graham Bell to Mabel Hubbard Bell, July 4, 1894, with transcript

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL TO MABEL (Hubbard) BELL Chautauqua, N. Y. July 4th, 1894. My darling little wife:

In the bustle and confusion here I cannot write to you as I want to do — I simply send you these few things to show you that I have not forgotten our Wedding Day. I love you more and more as years roll by — and I only wish I could be as good a husband to you as you have proved to be — a wife. You have made me very happy my dear — I am proud of you and love you more than you can ever know. I hope Mr . s Kennan may be able to give you this on the eleventh of July — so that you may know I have not forgotten the day you came into my life — to bless it and make it happy.

Your loving husband, Alec.
